

Moving Out

A 1970s kitchen was badly in need of renovation. The owners wanted a simple, functional kitchen with clean lines and a style that better represented their lifestyle and taste. Everything from floor to ceiling was replaced to create a modern, fresh-looking space.

Clean lines and simple forms make the most of this kitchen's small space. Dark granite countertops and backsplash contrast beautifully with the ash cabinets.

✪ Ash cabinetry, stainless steel appliances, granite countertop and backsplash, and cherry floors are accessories hand-picked by the owners to reflect their needs and tastes.

✪ Glass-front cabinetry creates the illusion of more space while packing in the storage opportunities.

✪ An angled counter with a garden view was installed in the corner to provide a place for eating or prep work, making efficient use of the space.

✪ Large windows and a French door were included in the new design to open up the room by letting in more natural light.

Design: Marcy Voyevod Design
Contractor: David Adams

Cabinetmaker: Mueller Nicholls, Inc.
Photography: Muffy Kibby